Will Determine Bass' Insanity at State Prison

Retired Dentist Due to Arrive at "Walls" This Afternoon

RESUME PRACTICE
Would Be Assigned Duties To Which He Is Adapted

LITTLE ROCK, May 27.—(AP)—Warden S. L. Todhunter, of the Arkansas penitentiary, said today that Dr. Andrew J. Bass, retired wealthy dentist of Columbia Mo., sentenced to life imprisonment for killing William R. Pearman in a $200,000 insurance fraud plot, would be given a medical examination to determine his insanity soon after his arrival at the "walls" here.

Bass, who received a life sentence following his plea of guilty in Bentonville Circuit Court yesterday is expected to arrive at the state prison from Bentonville sometime this afternoon, the warden said.

He is being brought here with two other prisoners by Sheriff Edgar Fields. If Bass is found insane, as attorneys contend, Warden Todhunter said he would be confined to the state hospital for nervous diseases. At any rate if he is found to be in a sound mental condition, he will be kept at the prison here and assigned to certain duties which he is adapted.

He is 55 years old, Warden Todhunter said possibly the dentist would be permitted to resume his practice among the inmates.

"I cannot definitely say just what work he will be assigned to until other factors have been determined," the warden said.

"We have records to keep in the labor shop and barber shop, and have a cotton field on Tucker farm. I don't think he will be sentenced to the farm, but most likely will be assigned duties to one of the other tasks."

President Hoover today signed the Williamson bill providing for the transfer of prohibition enforcement on July 1 from the treasury to the justice department. The measure is designed to bring about closer co-operation of enforcement under the prohibition law.

It was passed by congress on President Hoover's recommendation of the transfer. Under it the enforcement duty will be taken from the treasury department for the first time since prohibition became effective.

More than 2,500 employees will be transferred to the justice department under G. Aaron Youngquist, assistant attorney general.

The acts called for the building of two federal prisons, two reformatories and a number of jails costing approximately seven million dollars.

One of the new prisons will be constructed in the vicinity of Erie, Penn., while the other will be built west of the Mississippi river. A reformatory will be constructed in the southwest, and the jails will be in the large centers of population. The other reformatory will be in the East.

Newspaper men of Hammond refused to divulge details of the story, in fear that their lives would be imperiled.

The city of Hammond was reported to be in a state of high excitement.

NEW YORK, May 27.—(AP)—One year ago today, May 27, in the living room of her parents' home in Englewood, N. J., Anne Morrow became the bride of the world's foremost birdman, Charles A. Lindbergh. She wore a simple white frock fashioned by the village dressmaker who had made her clothes since she was a little girl, and she carried a bouquet of garden flowers picked by her future husband just a few minutes before the ceremony.

Since that day the quiet and unassuming young woman, remembered by her college classmates as studious, dreamy and so shy that even as a senior she suffered when she had to get up before a class and recite, has learned how to fly and navigate an airplane.

After Fatal Collapse of Building

Here is the jumble of wreckage in which two men died and a score were injured when a building under construction collapsed in New York. Tall girders are shown tilted in the air at crazy angles—one is slanted obliquely against the walls of an adjoining factory—after the steel framework of the four-story structure had crumbled and crashed, trapping some of the workmen underneath. An investigation of the accident was ordered.

COUSHATTA, La., May 27.—(AP)—Six thousand persons were reported homeless today and 105,000 acres of land inundated caused from flood waters of Red river and its tributaries in the Red River and Natchitoches parishes.

Representative James B. Aswell, telegraphed an appeal to Washington headquarters of the Red Cross organization today, asking for relief of 1,000 families in Natchitoches parish, saying that a grave danger had arisen. He asked for $14,000 to be used in purchasing food for the next four weeks, and $5,000 for replanting 40,000 acres of crops.

Between Grand Bayou and Clarence the flood water covered Jefferson highway and the banks of Red river. Eight refugee camps had been established in Natchitoches parish, and planters and merchants were caring for the destitute until organizations of relief could be established.

In Red river parish to the north, 2,500 persons were in three refugee camps, and approximately 25,000 acres of rich land were under water. Flood waters covered the vicinities of Bull Bayou, Christian, Westlake, Abington, Grand Bayou and Gahagam.

A recession was reported in the Shreveport area, and the stream is expected to be within its banks by June 1st.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., May 27.—(AP)—Accompanied by Gilmore, his lion cub mascot, Col. Roscoe Turner took off at 4:03 a. m. (E. S. T.) today on a one-stop flight to Los Angeles, Cal., in an attempt to establish a new speed record to the Pacific.

The non-stop flight record from East to West is 19 hours and 32 seconds, established by Capt. Frank Hawks.

Bert Lytell Guilty
Income Tax Shortage

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 27.—(AP)—Bert Lytell, actor, pleaded guilty in Federal Court here Monday to charge of failing to pay adequate income tax for the year 1925. On the claim that he expected a $3,500 a week stage and screen contract shortly, Judge William James delayed pronouncing of Lytell's sentence until next October.

Government agents testified that Lytell's income for 1925 was about $66,000 on which he paid $1,381 in taxes. They testified he should have paid an additional $3,582.

The actor declared the discrepancy was unintentional as his tax returns

To Vote on Treaty
At Special Session

Announcement Made By Watson After Series of Conferences

WASHINGTON, May 27.—(AP)—Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, announced late Monday after a series of conferences with senate and house leaders that the London naval limitations treaty will be left for the special session of the senate which President Hoover is preparing to call.

President Hoover was informed immediately of the decision of the congressional leaders and indicated he was standing by his determination to call the special session.

It is expected the special session will be ordered immediately after adjournment of the regular session soon after the tariff is out of the way, probably by mid-June.

Earlier in the day it had been indicated by Senator Watson that an attempt would be made to dispose of the naval treaty the rivers and harbors bill, the tariff, and several other pieces of legislation before adjournment, but the decision to postpone consideration of the London pact was reached at later conferences.

All of the legislation decided to be taken at this session had been acted upon by the house. Senate committees have made radical changes in the house bill on rivers and harbors, veterans' hospitalization, and bus regulation, however, and if approved by the senate would necessitate further house action.

The party conference went into the merits of the naval treaty to some extent, Watson said, but he did not make clear what objections were raised. Senator Johnson, of California, an opponent of the treaty, and Senator Hale of Maine, chairman of the naval committee, were present.

Texan Accused of Taking Excessive Fees

TEXARKANA, May 27.—On affidavit of County Judge E. H. Beck, a suit has been filed in District Court of Bowie county, Texas, asking for an injunction to restrain Tax Collector M. N. Berry of Bowie county from collection $2,500 in fees earned by his office during the present year, 1930. The petition alleges that Berry last year drew $2,542.68 illegally above the amount allowed him by law.

District Judge Johnson granted a temporary injunction and made the writ returnable at next term of District Court.

Berry is serving his first term as tax collector. He recently had a nervous breakdown and has been confined to his home for two weeks. He is reported as denying the charges.

PRODUCERS TO HELP
Farm Committees Will Aid
in Procuring Gift
Melons

George W. Robinson, prominent banker and civic worker, has been chosen as executive head of the 1930 Watermelon Festival.

The Festival this year will be held on Thursday, August 7.

This was announced today by the organization committee, appointed by President Ralph Routon, following the decision of the Chamber of Commerce to continue the Festival again this year.

Selection of Mr. Robinson as the chief executive officer virtually assures that success of the Fifth Annual Festival. In the opinion of the executive committee, for it links one of Hope's most progressive citizens with the city's greatest publicity feature, and one of the most important and verting events in all Arkansas.

Active Civic Leader
Mr. Robinson has been active in all lines of community organization, serving several terms on the trade extension committee of the Chamber of Commerce, aiding in committee work on the Watermelon Festival of 1929, and helping with the organization of the Retail Merchants' association, of which he is now president.

He was selected to head the Fifth Annual Festival by a committee comprising past executives of the Festival. The rank-and-file of the 1930 Festival organization, also announced today, is virtually a cross-section of the business life of Hope. The entire city will be drafted to the support of this year's show.

Producers to Help
An encouraging factor in support of the 1930 Festival is the promise of the watermelon growers of the county to line up 100 per cent with the business men's committees. The annual supply of free melons for Festival crowds will be obtained at reduced prices this year, and the producers have agreed to lend whatever other assistance is possible.

The complete personnel of 1930 committees follows:

That Milwaukee Carpenter

VOLUMES could be written on a news story we read Saturday in the Rogers Daily News. It was a United Press dispatch from Milwaukee. A 60-year-old carpenter had saved enough money out of his wages to buy fifty shares of stock in the Milwaukee Railroad. The date of the annual stockholders' meeting came around and the carpenter, dressed in his best suit, a wing collar and neat tie, showed up at the directors' room in the home office.

Instead of a roomful of people—the Milwaukee has a million and a half shares of stock—he found only the president and his executive committee.

"They asked who I was," he related. "Then I met Harry E. Byram, chairman of the board of directors, and Henry Scandrett, president of the road. I felt kind of funny."

"First thing I knew, it was all over. They had read the minutes, elected the board of directors, and adjourned. Well, sir, it kind of looks to me that the whole thing is run from New York. All of the other owners of shares voted by proxy. It must have been cooked up beforehand. They're fast workers."

"They were kind of quiet, but asked me what I thought of business conditions. Some one said he thought things were getting better. I told them things were all right but they'd have to use all the extra surplus up first before things would be good again. And they said that's what they thought too."

"I told them about my work, that I was a carpenter all my life and had worked for our road in the West Milwaukee shops. I saw how big business was run and now I'm satisfied."

That was a rattling good newspaper story. There are several million people who can put themselves in that carpenter's shoes. He is the Average American who looks in on Big Business but can only guess what is going on. In imagination he follows the spectacular battles, defeats and victories of such men as Walter Chrysler, William Durant, the Van Sweringens and a host of others—but at close range, in a stockholders' meeting, it is rather mystifying. The man with a few nickles of his own is anxious for whoever is responsible, to carry on.

Learning Health at School

A LARGE measure of thanks is due the parents and physicians who this month completed a check-up on the health of the children who will enter Hope's public schools next fall. Sponsored by the Parent-Teachers associations of the city, a free clinic was held at each grade school, and hundreds of youngsters were examined for physical ailments. This, we understand, is one of the most important rules of the national congress of Parent-Teachers associations—and it is of untold value to the community, whose children today will be citizens tomorrow.

The greatest benefit should be the lesson it teaches the child. For if one is accustomed early in life to look for some specific cause of ill health, then the complaint of general ill health ought to be forever forgotten. There is no greater community work than that which the parents and physicians have launched this month. Medical science is still surrounded with a good deal of mystery, and too many people are kept away by fear, from that which has already worked a thousand miracles.

That 500-Word History

MR. COOLIDGE has been very quiet about the alterations in the text of his 500-word history of the United States, now being carved on the side of a mountain in South Dakota. The protest that Gutzon Borglum had seriously tampered with the true spirit of the Declaration and the Constitution by his highhanded editing, without consultation with the ex-president, came from another source. Possibly it was at first a case of being "too full for utterance," as it well might be. But at last it is reported that Mr. Coolidge objects to the revision, protesting that it is not his product that is being chiseled on the face of the mountain, and it is now expected that he will take some action with a view to compel the cutting of his annals as he wrote them. But to erase carvings in stone and substitute others at the same point is no small matter and in this case may even be impossible.

The embarrassing situation will confirm many in their view from the outset that the whole proposition was open to question, because of the obvious fact that a history of the United States with any approximation of accuracy or adequacy, a history that could satisfy either the patriots or the critical experts, can not be written within the limits of 500 words.—Tearikiana Gazette.

Kiddies Club

Have picked out about four names for this coming Saturday. That I know will give you kids a lot of fun.

You know the picture, has kind of a funny name but it is one of the kind that all of you kids will like.
It's Beebe Daniels as the star, she does a lot of trailing around to catch a couple of crooks who have stolen some pearls, and my what fight scrapes they all get into. You know its one of those pictures that make you sit way out on the edge of the seat to see what's going to happen next, but everything works out all right and they get married and live happily ever afterward.

Then on another part of the program is Chas. Chase in a big comedy called the "Big Kick" its just a lot of laughs.

Tomorrow the names of our members who are having birthdays this week will be in this column, be sure and watch for it and if you don't see your name in there and you have had a birthday, be sure and phone us, as The Star does not want to miss any of you kids on your birthday.

Better be thinking hard where we are going to go on our picnic as we will want to decide this Saturday where it will be.

at North Haven, Me.

MOM'N POP

A couple of weeks later they were off with a party of scientists on their Central American cruise, photographing ruins, landing in little inlets to go ashore in an inflated rubber boat and explore the jungle. This trip had been inspired by experiments they had tried in photographing ruins from the air while in the west earlier in the summer. Mrs. Lindbergh operated the camera and, when she was not busy at that, served meals in the air to her husband and the scientists.

Back in New York by the middle of October, Mrs. Lindbergh took some more flying lessons and later in the month received her pilot's license, stopping at Nassau en route from the field after one of her solo flights to get another license to permit her to drive an automobile, too.

Two days after Christmas they were off again—to the Pacific coast.

Another Solo Flight
January 27 Mrs. Lindbergh made a solo flight over Los Angeles—"just to brush up a little on her flying," the colonel said.

January 29 at San Diego she went up in a glider, stayed up six minutes, and won her glider pilot's license.

Until April 18 the Lindberghs remained in California, hopping all up and down the coast in airplanes and gliders while Mrs. Lindbergh boned away on navigation. Then came the record-breaking flight home.

Three years ago this month Charles Lindbergh soared out over the Atlantic to Paris and worldwide fame.
And Anne Morrow, then a little college girl, quiet and shy, with a penchant for writing poetry, undoubtedly read about it in the papers up at Northampton, Mass.

Two years ago this month, she enjoyed a triumph of her own—a triumph that would seem much more in her line than breaking aviation rec-

Half of Population Is Lost By Calhoun Town

CAMDEN, May 27.—The town of Thornton, Calhoun county, once a prosperous saw mill municipally, has lost more than half its population since the last census, according to figures released by E. L. Perry, census supervisor here. The population now is 550 as compared to 1312 for 10 years ago. There were 28 farms included in the enumeration. The big loss is due to the abandonment of the Stout Lumber company's large mill at Thornton.

LaFayette township in Ouachita county has a gain of more than 500 with 1750 as compared to 1235 in 1920.
There were 178 farms.

Kingsland township in Cleveland county shows a loss with 1663 as compared to 2004 in 1920. There were 221 farms.

Casewell township in Calhoun county also shows a loss with 1409 as com-

Many Now Have Young Turkeys

Territory Furnishes Several Cars Thanksgiving Turkey

(By E. C. T.)

"Turkey By The Acre," a slogan coined by Mr. M. L. Nelson, popular poultry dealer of Blevins, Ark., several years ago is recognized as a reality now as one drives through the territory near Blevins and sees the several acres fenced for the growing of these young turkeys. The happy farmer stops their car and visits one of these hundreds of these little fellows who are "turkey language" that they are giving their best to get big and fat for Thanksgiving dinner. Some are some eight or ten persons good to eat. The best of the turkeys are from their "acres of turkey." One man in particular cleared about 100 acres and had seven turkey acres. He has those who grow turkeys in confinement a number of years. He will use the range method. The turkeys are all shipped from Blevins and total several cars each season.

This year he is to ship a car of turkeys to the Eastern market. Last season a shipment of Blevins turkeys was made to Memphis, Tenn. They sold for quite a premium and all that were sent in there.

M'CASKILL

Train service failed here Monday morning. A bridge was washed out on the track. Repairs have been made and train service is normal again. Mrs. Thelma Bruce of Blevins was the guest of Miss Ruby Wortham Thursday.

Mrs. Chester McCaskill and daughter visited Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Stephens of Blevins Wednesday. Mr. Ashmore of Bebee is a business visitor in town. Mrs. Julia Collins and daughter, Wilhelmina, are spending a month in Oklahoma.

New Cruiser Put in Commission

While naval authorities were engaged in heated debate in Washington over the gunpowder of cruisers, this trim new addition to Uncle Sam's battle fleet—the cruiser Northampton—was being placed in commission. The vessel is pictured here at the Charlestown Navy Yard, Boston.

BELTON

Because of rain all church services were omitted here Sunday. The preaching services held here by the Pentecost Holiness are just fine and all that have attended have enjoyed them.

Rain Hinders Work On Farms

Many Have Not Finished Planting Cotton and Cantaloupes

In common with the whole of this section of the country Blevins is suffering seriously from the excessive rains which have fallen almost continuously since the second day of May.

The farmers have not been able to work the growing crops and a number of them have not been able to finish planting either cotton or cantaloupes.

Heavy losses have resulted from having large portions of their growing crops washed away, and all crops have been injured. Many acres in this section will have to be replanted due to washing away and sanding over.

More damage has been wrought in this section from rains than in many years.

The highway workers are progressing fine. Everyone is looking forward to its completion.

Mr. Homer Harris has returned from Little Rock.

Mrs. Preston Pickett is one of the many who was left grief stricken by the death of her brother Mr. Jimmie Hampton at McCaskill. Mrs. Pickett is of the Belton community.

All the farmers of this place are busy stirring the soil since the awful pecking rains.

Mr. and Mrs. James T. Dotson of Nashville, spent Saturday and Sunday with Mr. Dotson's parents Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Dotson of this place.

MARRIED

Miss Lella Stephens of Blevins, who has been teaching at Rosboro this past year, surprised her many friends, who were anxiously expecting her home at the close of school, by getting married instead of coming home. She was married to Mr. Edward Jordan, of Rosboro, Friday evening June 18th, by Rev. J. H. Cummins, pastor of the Methodist church at Glenwood and Rosboro.

BLEVINS PERSONALS

Mrs. Ezra Tribble and young daughter Melba Sue, of Tuscon, Arizona are here for a visit of several weeks with Mrs. Tribbles mother, Mrs. J. H. Stephens, and their numerous relatives and friends. The Tribbles moved from Blevins to Tuscon, about a year ago. Their host of friends here are still cherishing the hope that they will follow the example of several others and come back to dear old Arkansas.

Mrs. Herbert M. Stephens and children, Harold and Marcia, are in De Queen for a visit of several days with Mrs. Stephens' sister, Mrs. Edwards.

Miss Mary Sue Sage of Rosboro is visiting in the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Sage, near Blevins.

Miss Ione Arrington, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. V. Arrington, who has been teaching music this year in Altus, Oklahoma, is expected home before there notes are in print to spend the summer.

The farmers around Blevins were very much dejected this week because of the enormous damage done by the rains but a few days of sunshine has given a more cheerful aspect the situation and everybody is working vigorously to repair the losses.

The crews on the new highway from Blevins to Nashville are making good progress in spite of the hindrances and losses caused by the excessive rains of the past two weeks. The people are very much pleased with the surveys which have been selected and the character of the road which is being built.

Epworth League Union Will Meet in Blevins

The next meeting of the Henderson Epworth League Union will be held in the Methodist church at Blevins Thursday night June 5th. The Union is composed of the Epworth Leagues at Okolona, Gurdon, Prescott, Emmet, Midway, and Blevins. Mr. Drew Avance, of Gurdon is the president of the union, which meets monthly with some one of the member Leagues.

Where 2000 Fled Flood in Texas

Transformed into an American Venice, the flooded city of Jefferson, Texas, where 2000 persons were forced to flee for their lives, is shown in this striking aerial picture taken for NEA Service and this newspaper by Pilot Curry Saunders of Shreveport, La., on a hazardous flight over the inundated area. Highways were submerged, railroad tracks washed out and business and residential districts flooded when the Cypress river went on rampage.

Train Service Badly Crippled

Road Bed On Prescott Northwestern Damaged By Floods

Train service on the Prescott and Northwestern railroad was discontinued for a time due to washouts in the roadbed.

The mail and freight for all towns along the route was badly delayed on this account as the highways were also damaged and were barely passable.

Express shipments of plants from the McCaskill Plant Farms were considerably delayed due to the hindered train service.

McCaskill Man Dies Wednesday

Was Prominent Citizen of Community For Many Years

Mr. J. D. Hampton, aged 65, one among the most prominent citizens of this section, died at his home Wednesday morning following a short illness.

Mr. Hampton was born and reared in the vicinity of McCaskill and was one of the largest farmers of this section. Funeral services were held at one o'clock Thursday at the Methodist church, with Rev. Walsh, pastor of the church, officiating. Burial was in Marshall cemetery.

Deceased is survived by his widow, three children and a host of other relatives.

Film Star to Wed Society Girl

Culminating a childhood romance, Kenneth Harlan, screen star, and Doris Hilda Booth, Massachusetts society girl, startled Hollywood when they obtained a license to marry. They are shown here as they visited the Los Angeles marriage license bureau. Harlan had been married twice before, once to Marie Prevost.

Killing By Power of Suggestion Practiced By Australian Tribes

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 26.—(AP)—The secret of "black magic" which actually kills native men and women in Australia has been found by W. Lloyd Warner of Peabody museum, Harvard university.

The natives are blacks, pure stone-age men and women, living Mr. Warner says, as our ancestors probably did 10,000 to 20,000 years ago. Their home in the Crocodile islands and nearby mainland, where Mr. Warner spent most of the last three years, alone among them, as a Rockefeller Foundation research fellow in anthropology. He whose wife is unfaithful may ask the Shaman to kill her with black magic. A time when, she is absent from camp is chosen. Upon return she is informed her soul has been stolen.

Actually nothing has happened, but she and everyone else believe the following events took place in her absence. The shaman met her, thrust a sharp stick into her heart from beneath drank of the blood and with it her soul.

"What have I done?" he asked. "You have stolen my soul." Then he twisted her tongue and she

Highway Work Is Delayed By Rain

Work Expected to Be Resumed as Soon as the Weather Permits

The work on the new highway between Blevins and Nashville has been seriously delayed by the weather conditions. Surveying and clearing the right of way has gone on without a much delay in several sections however.

Indications are that within a few days all work will be resumed along the route.

It has not been announced as yet whether the grade will be built across the Ozan bottom at this time or whether it will be finished at a later date. It is possible that this stretch will be completed after the rest of the road is finished.

The Old Water Bucket Has Served Its Purpose

Once upon a time a "nice new water pail" was a fine gift for Mother!

AMERICAN farm women appreciate "new things" for the kitchen. But the water bucket—once a very useful article—is today practically a symbol of servitude! No matter how considerate and helpful Dad and the boys mean to be, the never-ending chore of lugging heavy pails of water from place to place falls far too often on Mother's already-burdened shoulders.

They bring to your farm all the comfort and convenience of city water service. They can be depended upon to do just what you want them to do—supply the water at the place or large place, tank or cistern.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIV

BERNADINE was in a state of great agitation. She had come down to Alan's office in spite of Dr. Wagner's orders that she spend the day in bed.

She was closeted with Alan in his private office when Natalie arrived, having an earnest business conference.

Philippa had sat, her eyes on the closed door, while she pretended to be typing something, fuming inwardly over the length of time Bernadine had been in there, until Natalie appeared.

Philippa looked up at her with malicious satisfaction. If she had to come, it couldn't have been at a more opportune time, the girl thought.

"Oh, good afternoon, Mrs. Converse," she said smilingly, and ceased her typing.

Natalie smiled back at her. She was a little breathless and flushed from hurrying, and from the pleasant anticipation of seeing Alan in his own office again. It would be like an echo from the past—from the days of their happiness.

Her excitement enhanced her beauty. Philippa was furiously conscious of her attractiveness and of the fact that all eyes were upon her. The girls would be laughing over their sleeves at her, Philippa, she knew.

Her fury almost penetrated to the surface. It was bitterest gall to her to see Natalie there. Still she said, politely: "Mr. Converse is busy, but I will tell him you are here, if you like."

"Oh, no, don't bother," Natalie exclaimed, and took a nearby seat; "I'll wait." She picked up a magazine and opened it, for she too was aware that she was an object of general interest. It embarrassed her a trifle, for she guessed that these girls probably knew something of her marital difficulties. She tried to think of more agreeable subjects—other office scenes—scenes that Alan had made, for instance. She buried her face a little lower over the magazine as she recalled the way he had laughed at her fear that someone would open his door and surprise her in his arms. And the more she had protested, the tighter he had held her and the harder he had kissed her.

It was a delicious pastime, living over those moments again. A vagrant thought, coming unobtrusively, remained in her mind as she sat there, and grew into a poignant longing.

She closed her eyes and let herself dream that it might come true. She would go through that door and Alan would fold her close as he used to do. He'd kiss her "bewitching chin," her "adorable nose," her "alluring lips," her "enchanted eyes."

Her lids flew open. Alan was at his door. She felt her heart go pit-a-pat. And then—she saw Bernadine!

NEITHER Bernadine nor Alan saw her. She might have been a graven image, so suddenly still had she become. For the scene she was witnessing was a petrifying one, to her.

Plainly Bernadine was emotionally upset. Had they had a love scene? A quarrel perhaps? A knife-like pang shot through Natalie's heart. Had she sat out here dreaming in a fool's paradise, while actually the thing she was dreaming of was being enacted at that very moment with her rival in her role?

Suddenly, under the overpowering stress of her emotion, she closed her eyes, shutting out the blackness that rose before her. When she opened them again, Alan was standing with his hand on Bernadine's arm, speaking to her in low, soothing tones.

Natalie's imagination, inflamed as it was by her suppressed jealousy of Bernadine, saw in it a love-like touch. Then he took Bernadine's hands, holding them one on the other and gently patting the one on top.

Natalie could scarcely bear it; especially when Bernadine leaned against Alan, her physical weakness appearing to Natalie like a demonstration of her affection for him.

Alan went with Bernadine to the outer door. "You shouldn't have come out," he scolded her, but they had passed by Natalie and she did not hear. "If you'd just listen to me, Bernadine, you wouldn't have these losses."

"I know, Alan, but they came from the same source as my luck came from, so how was I to know?" "What's your broker for?" Alan grumbled.

"To take me to the elevator," Bernadine suggested. She was smiling, but it was really necessary for her to lean on Alan.

Natalie watched them go. And slowly her lovely mouth became contorted as it had not been for months. She was standing when Alan returned, her head held high, a cold brightness glittering in her eyes.

Alan was close before he saw her. "Why, Nata . . ." he began, then her expression warned him to stop. He divined at once that something was radically wrong.

His first care was to seek privacy for what he surmised was to come. He took her firmly by the arm. "Have you waited long?" he asked for the benefit of the office, quite forgetting that Philippa should have received some special thought. But how could he remember, with one of Natalie's tempers coming on, that he had told Philippa, to insure what peace he had, that he and Natalie had not become fully reconciled, even though they were living under one roof?

Philippa hadn't believed him, but as she saw him now leading Natalie, with seeming pleasure, into his private office, she was more than ever convinced that he had lied.

What happened in that office, after Alan closed the door, would have mollified her considerably had she witnessed it. For Alan and Natalie quarreled bitterly.

All her carefully built-up restraint vanished under the lash of her jealousy, which, now that she had let it go, whipped her into a veritable madness of passion.

Alan tried at first to explain, to tell her about Bernadine's heavy stock losses, to show her that it was only friendly encouragement that she had seen him offer Bernadine. But Natalie would not listen.

Natalie accused him wildly of this and of that. He did not deny her charges, and he said bitter, biting things in return.

Philippa, outside, keeping her back turned to the other girls, agonized under the suspense of waiting for something to happen. She consulted her watch every other minute. The time that Natalie stayed in Alan's office seemed to her interminable.

Natalie and Alan had lost track of time. When at last Natalie's physical strength could no longer support her mood it changed. She knew suddenly she couldn't fight any longer—that she had to leave, or subside into humiliating weakness.

Alan let her go without protesting. He did not even go to the first door with her. This Philippa noted with a flare of exultation when Natalie walked out alone. Through the open door, she could see Alan, turning toward a window, and there was in his manner something that added still further to her satisfaction.

PHILIPPA throttled her inclination to go in to him as she had meant to do, before she saw Natalie and knew that they had quarreled.

The scales were tipping in her favor again. As she had hoped, Natalie had resented Bernadine's presence there. Suddenly she frowned. She didn't like Alan's attentions to Bernadine herself. But she knew that Bernadine needed sympathy. Her losses on the market had been exceedingly heavy and suffered as a result of her refusal to take Alan's advice in the matter.

She worked on until closing time, without giving any of the girls a chance to talk to her. But as she saw, when they were preparing to leave, that she could not avoid them, and Alan was still in his office, she picked up her notebook and went in to him.

He was sitting at his desk, staring fixedly at nothing. His face was a perfect reflection of his hopelessness.

Philippa came over and stood beside him. "It's closing time," she said softly. And then, as he did not answer: "Is there anything I can do?"

"What?" Alan looked at her blankly. "I said 'Is there anything I can do?'" Philippa repeated.

Alan muttered: "No." His head had fallen forward again, his chin on his chest. He was slumped deep in his chair, utterly dejected.

Philippa seated herself quietly in the chair that was for her use. She said nothing. Presently Alan looked at her. "Let me alone," he begged.

Philippa reached out and put a hand on his arm. "Please, Alan," she coaxed. "I know you're in trouble. I'm going to help you."

"You are?" Alan's voice was jeeringly infected.

"Oh, you don't believe I know anything about love, do you?" Philippa flung back at him. "Well, I love you enough to give you up if . . . if you can't live without Natalie."

Alan put out a hand, as though to stop her. "Oh, I know," she cried. "You and Natalie have quarreled about me. I'm standing between you. Well, I wanted to—as long as I thought there was a chance that you could love me. But I can't stand to see you looking like that . . . I can't! I can't!"

She was sobbing, her head on her arms.

Alan found himself comforting her. "Don't," he entreated. "You hadn't a thing to do with it, Philippa."

"Oh, Alan, I'm so sorry for you," Philippa gasped. "What are you going to do?" "I don't know," Alan said huskily. "But let's go somewhere." He looked wildly about.

"We'll go to my apartment," Philippa said. "I'll cook dinner for you."

Court Protects Liquor Buyers

Renders Decision in Test Case of James E. Farrar

WASHINGTON, May 27. — (AP) — Purchasers of liquor from bootleggers were Monday declared by the supreme court to be exempt from prosecution on the charge of violating the national prohibition law.

The court declared that purchasers were not guilty with the seller in violating the prohibition law, when they accept the delivery of bootleg liquor.

The case was that of James E. Farrar, of Boston, selected as a test case by the government.

Attorney General Mitchell selected it in an attempt to solve several troublesome questions in prohibition enforcement. The federal district court quashed the indictment, holding it was not an offense under the prohibition act to purchase liquor from a bootlegger.

The government took the position in the supreme court that all purchases of liquor, except under a permit or a physician's prescription, were illegal. Counsel for Farrar argued that the permits which the government insisted were necessary to legalize the purchase of liquor were issued only to manufacturers and others authorized to withdraw liquor and alcohol for other than beverage purposes, and did not apply to purchasers from bootleggers. He also pointed out that while the prohibition amendment was being framed in congress, unsuccessful efforts were made to penalize purchasers, and that Senator Sheppard of Texas, one of the proponents of the prohibition amendment, recognized that it did not cover purchases of liquor from bootleggers and now had pending a bill to make such purchases illegal.

Motorist Arrested After Uncoupling Freight Train

WEST NEW YORK, N. J., May 27. — (AP) — Ludwig Lanther, impatient because a 124-car freight train refused to move off a street crossing, saw a chance to save a little time. He uncoupled two of the cars. When the train started he drove through.

The train then backed up, closed the gap, and kept other motorists waiting an hour and a half.

Lanther was haled into court and held in $500 bail on a charge of violating a law which forbids tinkering with freight trains.

But Lanther wants to know about the law in Jersey that no train can block a highway more than five minutes.
